

Brainsauce I and II

Lyrics by Ann Kathrin Lüthi

Freezing it is at the end of the world
Outside the door a girl lies curled up forever more
As it were no answer for her I have felt
A whirlwind passing by you're taking a bypass I must say

Well it all gets too much every once in a while
I don't want to confuse but clear the sky
A moon from the side colliding with the sun
A balloon is to hide when I fire a gun

We won't get discarded
No more disregarded
They won't separate us
We will fast-forward time

Forgotten lies the forehead on its front
And blunt is the knife that cuts you open
You turn the dagger around once more to make it fit
Before you tear it out again and bury it

I place your picture in the center of the set
I don't get what I get you let me fail your test
I can't reset I can't reset a bleeding brain
I gain nothing more than I can explain

A flare lights up the woods in the dark
A sudden attack from a wrong spelled text
Nothing's next you lay your head at rest at last
All goods are worthless if they're not shared

I will not falter I have nothing left to hold
I burn inside out and then I end in smoke
Who is the villain now and who is the rogue
When you don't come up with the antidote

We won't get discarded
No more broken-hearted
They won't separate us
We will fast-forward time

I won't get misdirected
More so than expected
Leave me unaffected
Be in peace with me now
