

Heart in Plastic

Lyrics by ann kathrin lüthi

You step into a twilight zone
You're waiting for relief to come
You didn't mean to go so far
You didn't mean to go at all

What's the matter with you, man?
Here we go you go again
What's the matter with you, man?
Here we go again

You are losing track of mine
Before you are aware of it
You're slowly running out of time
But still you linger about a bit

What's the matter with you, man?
Here we go you go again
What's the matter with you, man?
Here we go

I wrap my heart in plastic
So that you can see right through it
You're deep you're big you are cosmic
I bleed I am losing what I need

I do not say that I'm still sad
I am wishing you well instead
You cannot hold it for a while
But dream to hold it for a lifetime
